BRUSH CLEAN UP

along the back fence line of the church property

April 20, 2024

9am

This will be a community event where all are invited and encouraged to assist with this clean-up.

We highly recommend volunteers bring their own gloves, and equipment.

If you have any questions please contact Oscar Vigil, Grand Knight, at 210-705-2722, vigiloscar@att.net.

The God they met—we meet Him too

This Sunday, the Third Sunday of Easter, we see an early point in the apostles' transformation. From the Passion to Pentecost, they went from cowardly to courageous, from traitors to martyrs, from silence in the upper room to shouting from the rooftops. What did this do to them? Well, the Holy Spirit indeed, but also the resurrection. Once they saw what they saw, there was no option but to share it. What did they see?

They saw a God who pursues them.

The Gospel opens with two disciples returning to Jerusalem. Luke reported that these disciples had headed out of town after Jesus was killed. But then they met Jesus on the road and in the Eucharist and were compelled to return. “While they were still speaking about this, he stood in their midst and said, ‘Peace be with you. This is not a God who is distant and aloof; he pursues us when we flee, and he stands beside us when we return.

They met a God who helps them see everything as it is.

In today’s Gospel, Jesus tells his disciples, “Thus it is written that the Christ would suffer and rise from the dead on the third day.” But he had told them that before. He does something more this time: “He opened their minds to understand the Scriptures.” We all know what it’s like to finally understand something that didn’t make sense before — anything from a math problem to the plot of a movie. It is a beautiful, pure, satisfying feeling. The disciples had this feeling to an even higher degree, and it wasn’t just one small thing they were finally understanding; it was everything – the whole human story.

They met God himself and were compelled to do something about it. We meet him too. We experience practically everything they did.

The first two readings show that we are in the same position the early Christians were. “The author of life you put to death,” says St. Peter, and accuses his audience of doing exactly what he himself did: denying Jesus when it mattered most. St. John applies the same lesson to those who followed later. “Those who say, ‘I know him,’ but do not keep his commandments are liars,” he says. But John also extends the same opportunity Peter had: “But if anyone does sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous one. He is expiation for our sins.” We, too, need to repent. We can meet Jesus like the apostles did: in the Eucharist, in the Scriptures, and in the Church. For the apostles, his resurrection was obvious and unavoidable. It is just as obvious and unavoidable to us through their witness and the witness of two millennia of saints.

Our Middle School Retreat was a SUCCESS!

We are walking the faith journey together here at Prince of Peace, and that includes our middle school aged parishioners! Thank you to all those who made the 'A Walk With Jesus' Middle School Retreat a success. A special thank you to our volunteer catechists, all ministry volunteers, and those who donated and contributed to this free event, as well as the parents of the teens who attended.
